

EMERGENCE AND ROLE OF BROKERS:

A Sociological Study of Brokerage in a Sri Lankan Village

Ratnayakemudiyanselage Ranaweera Banda

Class No.
Acc. No.
No.

Thesis submitted for the Degree of
Master of Arts in Sociology

Faculty of Arts
University of Colombo.

January, 1987.

UCLIB

414944

414944

CR

C O N T E N T S

		Page.
Preface
Introduction		1
Chapter 1.	- Research problem and Relevance	5
	Theoretical Relevance	6
	Practical Relevance	12
Chapter 2.	- Methodology	15
	The data collected	20
	Location	20
	Sampling	21
	Techniques of data collection	22
	Time schedule of the field research	22
	Limitation and problems	24
Chapter 3.	- Theoretical Framework	26
	Traditional community	26
	Patron-client relationships	30
	Rural communities and the process of incorporation	41
	The impact of the incorporation process on the transformation of the patron-client relationships	45
	Emergence of brokers	51
Chapter 4.	- Introduction to Talpitiya village-Geographical background of the Matara District	58
	General administration of the District	60
	Demography settlement pattern and housing of the District	61

	Page
Economy of the Matara District	63
Morawak Korale (East) AGA's Division	67
A Description of the Talpitiya village	71
Location	71
The History	72
Demography	72
Education	75
Settlement and housing	76
Economy of the village	77
Income levels of the villagers	80
Occupational structure	82
Social characteristics	85
Family pattern and kinship	85
Village patrons	88
Religion	89
Social networks	89
Social welfare services	91
Village level organizations	94
4.2 - An introduction to economic, political and administrative systems from 1920-1980	95
Economy	96
Politics	107
Administration	121
4.3 - The impact of macro-processes on the emergence of brokers in Talpitiya	131
The economic structure	139
The political structure	164
The Administrative structure	178
Chapter 5. - Theoretical and conceptual Analysis	191
Chapter 6. - Conclusion	222
- Bibliography-

